SUB – O PROCESSING

Subjective-Objective Processing and its Usage in Resolving Composite Case

This form of processing at a minimum is three times as efficient and effective as standard subjective processing run from the first person viewpoint. In the testing and application of this technique, it has never failed to produce at least three times the amount of charge released from a case — where that charge is available — and also has resolved long-standing case factors that appeared to have no previous resolution.

For a long time now we have had a term in Scientology referred to as the “composite case.” A term referring to phenomenon that was never fully understood, and was part of a research line that remained uncompleted last lifetime.

So, I have been looking into this subject heavily for the last two years as one of many potential out-points in the upper levels of the Bridge. The composite case as it referred to, is essentially case factors or aberrations that are not our own, and stem from something or someone other than ourselves.

These aberrations or case factors must then be “composed” of yourself, and whatever this other thing may be.

Up until now, it was believed that the cause of this was other beings that are stuck to us or are in the space surrounding us. Referred to as BT's (Body Thetans) or CL's (Clusters – a collection of Body Thetans in a group with a mutual incident).

That is a simplified explanation of what a composite case is and is mentioned here for those who may not be aware of the data.

What is the composite case — really

Given many recent discoveries and current research I had to revisit this phenomenon altogether because I suspected that in some part the concept of the composite case contained out-points. I believe that for the most part, I have worked out what the majority of these points are — though it is too soon to say for sure. There is still a lot that needs to be studied and applied before it is drawn up into a definitive version of technology.

At the moment, it is entirely workable and produces some incredible case gains and results.

I will explain how the composite case functions and then I will tell you how to audit it out.

At any point in time where two beings or MEST (or multiple beings and MEST) have a mutual impact in common, composed of enough force to produce any pain, unconsciousness, or discomfort: there is a point — only if this point is a fraction of a second — where all opposing forces will equal zero and obtain a total equilibrium.

Simultaneously creating a static force that has a complete absence of matter, energy, space, and time; but has the infinite capacity and potential of matter, energy, space, and time.

Therefore, following the Law of Conservation of Energy: the discharge of any force containing MEST will thereafter perpetually exist, in potential, as a static that parallels all of the initial forces at the moment of initial discharge.

The above is a short description of the UNIFICATION PRINCIPLE. It is the fundamental basis that underlies the entire universe and life itself. It is how life is formed and continues to exist, moment-to-moment.

I believe that this is the only absolute that exists within in life and the universe. As such, it forms not only the underlying basis of life and Scientology itself but will be the stable datum from which further technology is developed and is aligned.

Having said all of this. When one of these interactions takes place between beings or MEST, and an incident or energy manifestation of any type is created, it becomes recorded in each beings reactive mind, space, and in the physical universe itself.

That is the best description of what a composite case or incident is.

Let me put this in practical terms. Say a husband and wife do not have the most optimal marriage. They frequently argue, and the husband is also prone to beat on his wife regularly. Over time this will cause them to have many abberative or engramic experiences between one another.

At some point they both decide to call the marriage quits and to get a divorce. Now, years later, the husband comes across the subject of Scientology and begins to get some auditing. He even goes so far as to become clear, but still has many different case factors that continue to persist regardless of them having been run and picked up from every available auditing approach.

In particular, this man now finds himself to be quite fearful of others. When several years prior, he was quite aggressive and virile as a man. Those days are now gone for him, and with an analysis of his case, it would appear that there is no other explanation for this.

Usually, this would lead to an auditor or C/S assuming that something was missed or not run on the case altogether and it has to be the “composite case.”

Now if you take this guy into session and ask him to locate another (separate) being that is causing him to experience fear — an amazing thing happens. His attention will go directly to his ex-wife, and he will get a concept of what she is doing and where she is located at in present time. Further auditing of why she is causing this will reveal that it is the result of him beating her during their marriage.

The odd thing is this will not be his fear, but her fear at the moments when he was beating her. It is all her case. The counter-thought, counter- emotion, and counter-effort belong to the wife — which is now occasionally affecting the husband in PT.

If the husband is instructed to telepathically take the wife through this incident using upper-indoc TR’s: of control via communication (telepathy) — it can be seen that his fear has now disappeared in present time.

It would appear that this is the result of the mutual incidents that we have had along the wholetrack, with all of the different case aspects they contain — becoming restimulated — chronic or otherwise.

They then key-in against the other person(s) that were involved in them irrespective of time or space.

It was erroneously thought that auditing one end of these things would fully resolve them, and for some time, I believed the same thing. I can now definitively say that this is not the case. In the application of this procedure, I applied both methods and got mixed results or no resolution of case factors being run. Both sides have to be addressed to get the fullest benefit from auditing.

Yes, this is distinctly different than running various flows while delivering a process. When we audit another flow, we are only ever getting our objective view of what someone was thinking, feeling, or doing at some time in the past.

How could we ever know that for certain? The truth is that you can't without getting them into session, or communicating with them to determine what they were experiencing "back then".

To some degree, this continues to affect us until it is handled in some fashion. Given that most of the people we have wronged are now dead and located elsewhere, it is a good thing I have discovered a way to address this. If not, we all would have been in serious trouble with no help on the horizon.

So, we take something that is subjectively bothering us and has been handled, previously or not, and then objectively handle it in another being with a mutual incident in common with us.

The mutual incident of the greatest magnitude will be found to be the one that has a counter-postulate or counter-intention that is causing the difficulty of a pc to exist or persist in present time.

Granted this is if the subject has already been addressed by other means, but this form of processing can easily be used to replace standard flows and is productive of much more case gain as a result.

Sub-O processing commands

1.) "Can you locate a point of equilibrium of another being that is causing_____?"

or if this is too steep a gradient

"Can you locate another being that is causing_____?"

You keep spotting points of equilibrium until an ep with the certainty that the other being has been fully handled — when using the first version. If using the second version, any portion of the grades tech can be used to achieve the same ep and certainty.

It depends on the gradient, and an auditor will have to use their judgment in determining which approach to use. I have personally found that both work equally well. The former is the simpler of the two to run.

Alright. There you have it. The discovery of one of the most significant answers in the entire universe and the potential resolution of the composite case.

Use this tech and come to understand it well.

Now, I know that I have said many times in the past that “this is it” or that I had finally discovered the “IT” — the great thing that we have all been searching for time immemorial.

In my defense, where I was caught up in my zeal, there was indeed many times I thought that I had.

I guess that it was my naivety and a gross underestimation of the ability that we all inherently possess, that was very deceitful and misleading when it came to the upper levels of scientology.

The tech just kept on coming, and more and more questions were produced that only led to even more discoveries and questions. In the process, I am sure that many beings became disillusioned and gave up on the subject entirely.

To avoid the same trappings this life I sat on these discoveries for almost four months before releasing them. I checked and double-checked all of the data, and for the first time, I no longer have any questions regarding the mind, the spirit, and life.

The work is done, and it is complete.

We have all crossed the precipice of the Bridge and eternity itself.

The final shot has been fired, and I now know the face of the enemy that has plagued humanity since the beginning of time. From the very inception of the universe itself.

You too will soon know these things as well. For this time around I will produce my seminal work, and it my gift to you all.

So join me on this final leg of the journey and let us free everyone once and for all.

Once this is accomplished, I will share something with you that many have long suspected — that Scientology was only a precursor to something much greater.

That ladies and gentleman is the subject of TECHNOMANCY.

The truth of things to come.

I would like to give special thanks to two wonderful beings and stellar scientologists.

The first is Perry Sheppard. The oldest living practitioner of scientology from the early days. This work and my inspiration for it were drawn wholly off of procedures that he has been applying for many years — with my twist and discoveries interjected.

It is too bad we missed each other on Saturday, 23 September 1950 but I am sure as hell glad that we got together this time around!

The other is to Mary. Another woman that I have been fortunate enough to have graced my life with her presence. Our conversations are always insightful and inspirational. Believe it or not; you helped me to work through many things.

Thank you both!
